KCPT’s Community Engagement Work Earns 2 NETA Awards

KANSAS CITY, MO, February 6, 2019 -- Kansas City PBS’ community engagement work around The Vietnam War series and the 50th anniversary of Mister Rogers’ Neighborhood were recognized Monday night, January 21, at the NETA Awards, which celebrate public media’s achievements in instructional media, community engagement, promotion, and general audience content.

KCPT’s Mister Rogers Kindness Crawl, a kindness scavenger hunt which the station hosted last March to commemorate the 50th anniversary of Mister Rogers’ Neighborhood, won in the Special Event category.

The station’s extensive efforts around Ken Burns and Lynn Novick’s The Vietnam War documentary series won the Community Engagement Based on a National Initiative category.

The NETA Awards are an annual recognition of public broadcasting’s finest work, a tradition established in the 1960s by NETA’s precursor, the pioneering Southern Educational Communications Association.

“Every one of us working in public media today can be proud of the NETA Award winners,” said NETA president Eric Hyypaa. “When you look at the achievements that these projects represent, making our services relevant and valuable to our communities, you can’t help but be inspired for the future.”
